22.1 Intro to the city

Ekaterinburg is one of the largest cities of the Russian Federation. It is an administrative capital of the Sverdlovsk Region and the Ural Federal District. Nowadays the city is an important center of industry, transport, finance, science and culture.

The city was founded in 1723 and is situated in the heart of the Eurasian continent, on the border of Europe and Asia and in the middle of the Ural Mountain Range. It is located on the eastern slope of the Ural Mountains along the Iset River.

Total area of Ekaterinburg is 491 square kilometers.

The city is at 1667 kilometers' distance away from Moscow and at 7635 kilometers' distance away from Vladivostok. The time zone of Ekaterinburg is UTC+6 (two hours ahead of Moscow and six hours ahead of Greenwich). A flight from Moscow to Ekaterinburg takes two hours, while a train trip takes 25 hours.

22.2 Sightseeing and Must Sees

Ekaterinburg, one of the most interesting cities in the Urals, is full of tourist attractions. Each era of the city's history is embodied in its architecture: the merchants' houses and old schools, strict constructivism and bold modern sculptures. The main attractions are linked by a 6.5 km-long tourist route, called the "red line". You can complete it in about half a day, following the red markings on the road.

Life is always in full swing on Ekaterinburg's main street "Prospect Lenina" with its many shops, museums and other cultural venues. Here, you will find one of the most beautiful buildings in Ekaterinburg – the house of Sevastyanov from the late 19th century. Tourists are attracted by the pedestrianised Vainera street with its many restaurants and fun contemporary sculptures. The favorite place among young people are the banks of the "Plotinka" urban reservoir, where all the city festivals are held. And the spirit of old times can be felt by visiting Kharitonovsky Gardens with its pavilion near the Kharitonov-Rastorguev country estate from the early 19th century.

Ekaterinburg's museums are definitely worth to see. The Museum of the History of Jewellery and Lapidary Art of the Urals has a large collection of natural and man-made stone masterpieces. The small, cozy A.S. Popov Radio Museum, with its collection of vintage receivers, and the V.S. Vysotsky Ekaterinburg Museum featuring personal belongings of the singer and poet, are dedicated to the great people who lived and stayed in the city. Also there is the Boris Yeltsin Presidential Centre, which tells the story of the first president of the Russian Federation. This impressive list ends with the Ekaterinburg Museum of Fine Arts with its collection of paintings, applied arts and crafts and unique cast ironwork – the pride of the Urals.

Ekaterinburg does not forget its history. There's the new Church on the Blood, built on the site of the demolished (and sadly infamous) Ipatiev House, where the Russian royal family was shot. The graceful Church of the Ascension of the Lord, reinstated as a church, shines gently between the tree branches. Near the "Great Ural" hotel, where Vysotsky stayed, is one of the most romantic monuments of the singer, as if playing a serenade to his beloved wife Marina Vladi. And a monument to the keyboard, apparently, represents its modern history.
